remediation technologies for heavy metal contaminated - the contamination of groundwater by heavy metal originating either from natural soil sources or from anthropogenic sources is a matter of utmost concern to the, quantification of benzene in groundwater sources and risk - the present research work quantified the concentration of benzene in a total of hundred groundwater samples at the proximity of petrol bunks and residential places in