The America First Committee

The America First Committee was a prominent American anti-communist group that was active from 1938 to 1943. The committee was founded by businessman Charles L. Faust and other prominent Americans who were concerned about the rise of communism in the United States. The committee's mission was to publicize the dangers of communism and to work for the re-establishment of American independence from foreign influence. The America First Committee was known for its vocal opposition to American entry into World War II and its support for a policy of isolationism.
